The People There Favor Annexation to the United States.

Report of the Defeat by the Revolutionist on Gen. Peppin in Command of a Government Force is Confirmed-Further Fighting at Monto-Christo.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 30.-Nelson B. Clarke, of Boston, who has just arrived here from Santo Domingo, confirms the recent advices as to the situation of affairs in that republic, but he adds that the revolution is so essentially national and devoid of personal political element that the adherents of Jiminez are advising him not to come to Santo Domingo for the present. What the people are clamoring for is not a mere change in the political personnel, but good government, with financial solvency, with which they associate the idea of American annexation or protectorate. This, Mr. Clark adds, is the sole present object of the revolution and the industrial and commercial conditions are such that the entire nation indorses the annexation scheme as the only real solution. The government censorship prevents correspondents from cabling the truth and the same applies to Hayti which sympathetically desires the suppression of the revolution.

CAPE HAYTIEN, Hayti, Aug. 30 .-News has reached here from Santo Domingo, confirming the report of the defeat by the revolutionists on Gen. Peppin in command of a government force who lost 30 men killed and had 40 of his soldiers captured. In addition, Gen. Peppin was compelled to abandon a convoy of provisions.

Further fighting has taken place near Monte Christo between the revolutionists under Gen. Davarro and the government troops commanded by Gen. Guelito. Details of this engagement have not reached here.

AGAIN ARRESTED.

Gen. Jiminez Went Ashore at Santiago, Cuba, and Was Placed Under Arrest-Jiminez Indignant.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Aug. 30.-Gen. Juan Isidro Jiminez, the revolutionary aspirant to the presidency of the republic of Santo Domingo, who arrived here Monday with his two sons by the South Coast steamer, but was not allowed to land, came ashore Tuesday and was placed under arrest by the order of Gen. Leonard Wood, the military governor, who will not permit him to proceed to Santo Domingo except after instructions to that effect from Havana.

Gen. Jiminez is very indignant at the treatment to which he is subjected though he does not attempt to conceal his intention to proceed to Santo Domingo and to become president of the republic.

Although Monday he declined to be interviewed, alleging that he was always misrepresented by the press, he talked freely Tuesday. Gen. Jiminez said that when Gen. Heureaux, the late president of Santo Domingo, was assassinated, he cabled to his friends in Santo Domingo to do nothing until his arrival. The principal portion of the revolutionary forces complied with this request, but he asserted his detention by the Americans had forced a general outbreak which would probably be successful and would certainly accomplish its purpose within ten days after his arrival in the country. He said he had received cabled information Tuesday that the revolutionists hold practieally the whole republic except the capital, San Domingo.

DEMANDS ENLARGED.

Events Have Taken an Alarming Turn in the Transvaal-Kruger Will Not Withstand an Ultimatum.

London, Aug. 30 .- The Pretoria correspondent of the Daily Chronicle telegraphing Tuesday says: Events have taken an alarming turn. Great Britain at the request of the Utlanders' council has enlarged the original demands of Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner, and is adopting the view of Cecil Rhodes that President Kruger will never withstand an ultimatum. I have, however, authority for asserting that President Kruger, the Volksraad and the nation will unitedly resist an unconditional demand for giving effect to the Milner programme, but will concede reforms on the conditions already apported.

yet to fill in the ten new regiments under organization, Secretary Root finds himself overwhelmed with applications, even greater in number than the sum total of those received at the beginning of the Spanish-American war. It is said at the war department that the large majority of the men who held commissions in the volunteer army in that war are again applicants for service in the Philippine campaign, reinforced by nearly all of those who held commissioned places. This same willingness to re-enter the service is said to be observable among the enlis ed men, and the officials cite as a case in point Col. THE CUBAN CENSUS.

The President's Proclamation Will Be Made Public in Havana Soon-Will Begin on October 16.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 .- It is expect ed that the president's proclamation relating to the taking of the census in Cuba will be made public at Havana very soon. Although it is well known that the taking of the census is intended as a preliminary step to the establishment of a republican form of government in Cuba, it is positively stated at the war department that there is nothing in the census proclamation to justify the assertion that the United States intends to give immediate independence to Cuba. The taking of the census will be followed by municipal elections and the inauguration of autonomy in localities where it is demonstrated that it is practicable and expedient. The taking of the census will require at least two months constant labor, and it is probable that the complete returns will not be tabulated before the beginning of next year. The withdrawal of American troops and the termination of the existing nilitary government is not looked for at the earliest, for several months yet.

The Cubans have been seeking to commemorate the opening of the first war for independence, which began Jetober 10, 1888, by beginning the takng of the census on October 10 next, s the census is regarded as one of the vidences of Cuba's progress toward elf rule and independence. It was finally decided, however, not o give a political aspect to this purely administrative duty, and the date for beginning the taking of the census has peen fixed for October 16. The work will begin simultaneously in all the provinces, and the enumeration will be accomplished within a few weeks. Only a few days will be required for tricts and the mountains and inaccessible localities will require considera-

A PHILANTHROPIST.

He Was Going to Get Rich and Get Up Something to Cool the People Off.

"Yes, sir," exclaimed the man with a linen duster and a high-crowned straw hat.

"I'm going to do it."

"What are you going to do?" asked the policeman to whom the stranger had addressed himself.

"You know," he went on, without heeding the question, "that the summer months are invariably marked by increased outbreaks of all kinds. Men's angry passions seem to rise with the thermometer.' "What were you threatening just now?"

asked the policeman, sternly. "Threatening?"
"Yes. You said you were going to do something. What are you going to do?" "I'm going to get rich. I'm going to get some steady employment and save up my money and invest it judiciously and get rich. There's no end of good you can do with riches. Rich men are doing a great deal of good now. They establish schools and colleges and libraries and let the people get acquainted with the soothing thoughts of philosophy and the sublimities of science. Landing with the Bootjack on the ficial Effect.

It was a sad scene. The old man lay on his bed, and by him sat the faithful wife, holding his worn hand in hers and forcing back the tears to greet his wandering look with a smile. She spoke words of comfort and of hope. But he felt the cold hand falling on him, and he turned his weary eyes up to her pale, wan face. Jennie, dear wife, I am going."

"Yes, dear wife," and he closed his eyes; the end is near. The world grows dark about me. There is a mist around me gathering thicker and thicker, and there, as through a cloud, I hear the music of angels -sweet and sad.

"No, no, John, dear; that isn't angels; that's the brass band at the corner."
"What!" said the dying man. "Have those scoundrels dared to come here when they know I'm dying? Give me my bootjack. I'll let 'em see.

And in a towering rage the old man jumped from his bed, and before his wife could think he had opened the window and shied the bootjack at the band. "I've hit that fat leader in the nose!" And he went back to bed and got well.-Tit-

They Are Once More in Active Rebellion Against Mexico.

Probably the Bravest American Aborigines Wno Ever Resented Foreign Invasion-Former Struggles for Liberty.

[Special Correspondence.]

For the sixth time since their country has been invaded by the Caucasian race the Yaqui Indians of Mexico are now battling for their lands, and their homes, and national independence. No nation or tribe of aborigines on the American continent has showed so sublime a love of liberty, greater bravery or as much wisdom; and to one familiar with the history of Indian revolts it is not surprising to hear that the Mexican government is prepared to dispatch 10,000 troops to the north to subdue the rebellious Yaquis.

The present war must terminate either in annihilation or in virtual independence. Military authorities, familiar with the strength and fighting capabilities of both sides, are confident that the Mexicans will win, but not without terrible sacrifices; and that, even after their defeat, the Indians will keep up a guerrilla warfare for years to come. The struggle will probably claim many more victims than the late Spanish-American war and will also be more important from a stragetic States territory, have found a safe ref- side of me would be nearly burning, and point of view, to say nothing of its historic interest as being the last determined stand of the American native against the immigrant from Europe.

That they have learned to use the white man's weapons is proven by the fact that since the beginning of the present revolt, or within two months, over a hundred miners and as many soldiers have been shot by the rebellious Indians. Gen. Miles has expressed the opinion that this war will not be over for months, and may drift into years.

tile. They sometimes desert their villages at the approach of strangers, leaving behind them nothing that can give aid or comfort to the invaders. When attempts are made to penetrate their mountain retreats they occasionally resort to resistance, but even in such cases they rarely do more than block the paths by which strangers must advance. Great rocks and trees are thrown across the narrow trails, stopping all progress of curiosity seekers and mining prospectors.

The Yaquis are industrious and lawabiding, but a Mexican regulation requiring all men to wear trousers has always been particularly obnoxious to them. When they visit a so-called civilized village to sell their pottery, woven mats and baskets they do not put on their trousers until they are about to enter the corporate limits, and on the homeward journey they take off the hated garments as soon as they'are clear of the town and carry them inlittle bundles on top of their heads. As early as 1590 Roman Catholic missionaries entered the valley of the Yaqui, 1,000 miles northwest from the City of Mexico, which had been captured by Cortez in 1521. In 1735, however, the Indians revolted against Spain. The invaders were defeated in battle, but made up for their failure in arms by artful duplicity. The Yaquis revolted again in 1825, and again in 1832, against Mexico, when, armed with bows, battle axes and spears, and led by their celebrated chieftain, Banderas, they put up a noble fight, although finally overcome. They made another revolutionary attempt in 1841, and defended their mountain fastnesses with rare valor, and for years held the Mexican troops at bay. Order was finally restored by a compromise. The present conflict will be still more sanguinary; because to-day the Indians are well armed. The bows and battle axes have been supplanted by winchester repeating rifles and field guns. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who is an authority on everything pertaining to Indian and border warfare, states that when a few years ago a company began to build a railroad south from Benson, Ariz., to Nogales and Hermosillo, the capital of the state of Sonora, and still further south to Guaymas, on the Gulf of Mexico, the Yaquis flocked to the region along the line of the road and offered their labor which, of course, was well paid for. With the money thus obtained they purchased rifles of the latest patterns and vast stores of ammunition. Many of them continued to work along the road, and thus kept up the supply of funds for the purchase of munitions of war.

They have by trails which the Yaquis jealously a government of their own, and crave independence. They are also a hospitable race. The men are kind to their women and children, and the women wield great influence. About their bravery there is no question. The women do some fine weaving in cotton

The men are employed as herders, well. They know the value of a dollar quite as well as white traders, and can drive a shrewd bargain. Their houses their uniform may be, they are simare thatched huts with earthen floors, ply "misters" until they wear two bars usually standing in the midst of small the Yaquis of to-day are the remnants of a brave and partially civilized people whom the Spaniards found in Mexico. They have never been conquered, and have never forgiven their Spanish enemies, nor their descendants. Their military organization is almost perfect, consisting as it does of companies, regiments and divisions.

A gentleman who recently returned from a trip through Sonora told the writer that he could not find a more appropriate designation for the Yaquis than that of the "Irish of America." Their love of country, he says, is as pure as that of the Irish peasant. Their bravery as unquestioned as that of the noblest Irish patriot. By force of numbers and power of military equipment they have been robbed of the tribular sovereignty over their native soil, but in sentiment they are Yaquis and no amount of legislation will make them Mexicans. They have been persecuted by alien priests and slaughtered by hireling troops, but still remain faithful to the religion of their fathers. A people like that, he thinks, deserve encouragement rather than annihilation. As to the number of Yaquis there is a great diversity of opinion. Some estimate the strength of the nation in Sonora at 25,000, others at 10,000. Fifteen thousand is probably the .right figure. In 1820 the Yaquis numbered 30,000, but thousands were killed in their wars with Mexico and thousands of others were degraded into peons, On the other hand, the government of Mexico has sacrificed 35,000 soldiers and many millions of dollars in fruitless endeavors to subdue the Indians and restore a permanent peace. How many of the 15,000 remaining Yaquis are now capable of bearing arms cannot be told with any degree of accuracy, but 3,000 might be taken as a conservative estimate. And 3,000 mountain men fight. ing in a mountainous country for home and liberty is a mighty host. That

ARMY OFFICERS CALLED "MR."

None of Them Get Their Official Title Until They Reach the Rank of Captain.

People who are not versed in matters of army usage often ask why certain army officers are addressed as "Mister," and not by their titles. To the men who enter the service from West Point they know that, no matter how much authority they may have, or how gay on their shoulder straps. A recent ocbean patches. There is no doubt that currence in the Army building illustrated the matter. A man who had been a field officer in the volunteer service in the war with Spain had been appointed to a lieutenancy in the new volunteer army, and called at one of the offices of the headquarters on a matter of business. There the officer the king took steps to curb the cu in charge presented him to a United pidity of the hated money lender was States army officer.

"Maj. Blank, allow me to present Mr. Smith-Mr. Smith, Maj. Blank."

The volunteer officer hinted in a modest way, when the major had withdrawn, that it might have been well to let the fact be known that he also was an army officer. "Oh, that's all right," said the officer who had acted as host, "everybody is mister until he is

BLUE CRAB AND MINNOW.

When the Wily Crab Gets the Timid Minnow and When the Minnow Gets the Crab.

The minnows come up, charging your decks. In other words, half the for the food held in the closed claw: but there are likely to be enough of them to spread, and they may come from various directions, so that more than likely one will come within the waiting pincers of the opposite claw, and when one does the proceedings are closed for the time being.

But sometimes the minnows get the blue crab; as they may do when the crab is shedding. The crab knows when that time is coming, and then it makes for a place where it can shed its shell and stay in safety until its new shell is sufficiently hard to protect it. The crab comes in with the tide and makes for some place on the bottom in shallow water, perhaps along the edge of the eel grass, or under some protecting patch of ulva, and then proceeds to lig a hole in which it can stay after it has shed its shell until it is strong enough to go about. It digs the sand or mud up around from under itself, and, as likely as not, leaves its discarded shell, in a most lifelike form, up or the sand on the edge of the hole in front of it. This shell would frighten away some small fishes that would not dare to tackle a crab in its ordi nary condition. The discarded shell is a help to fishermen who are hunting crabs, because it shows where a crab may be found, and weakfish, which come inshore in shallow water to feed hunt up soft crabs by searching the neighborhead of the spot where they find a shell, just as a fisherman would do.

When the crab first sheds its shell it is perfectly helpless. Its new shell is as yet so soft that it is no protection to it and no support; the crab cannot even stand up. The shell hardens rapidly, and it may be that by the time of the next full tide the crab will be able to move about and defend itself but for a time after it sheds it is help-

That is when the minnow gets the crab. The crab may have been lef by the receding tide above the edge of the water. When the incoming tide "By a desperate effort I succeeded in has again covered the crab and surrounded it with water to the depth of my arms and getting behind my wind an inch or two the minnows may disshield. I was a thoroughly scared and cover it, and they come swimming shaken man. It was hours before I got along through the shallow water to over the horror of that instant, when I attack it. Sometimes a fisherman disstood face to face with death."-Chi covers a soft crab by the splashing that the minnows kick up around it. If undisturbed the minnows swarming around the helpless crab will kill and eat it. But sometimes another blue crab will appear and break up the minnows' feast. This is a blue crab that has not shed its shell, but has its armor on. It comes stalking in among the minnows, perhaps nipping one of them in one of its pincer claws as it comes up, and dispersing the rest.

> The blue crab is a cannibal; it will eat its own kind. If when this crab comes up there is any of the soft crab left the newcomer will very likely eat that first, with one claw holding meanwhile in its other the wriggling minnow which it had seized at the outset, keeping that to top off with .- N. Pawnshops and Banks. The original pawnshop is difficult to locate. Early historians were interested in other lines, and only when the royal crown was placed in pawn or the subject of pawns and pledges mentioned. Moreover, the history of pawnbroking is so interwoven with that of usury and banking that its complete separation from these subjects is, for a time at least, an impossibility. From earliest times and with all peoples the system of pledging effects as security for advances in money has existed in some form. In this early period all those who accepted pledges as security for loans were not pawnbrokers in the sense that we to-day use the term. Of the antiquity of pawnits process of metamorphosis from the time of the Jewish law to that of the Roman. Its analogy to banking, the fact that the pawnbrokers later became bankers, would lead to the conclusion that private pawnbrokers existed long before the state took cognizance of the business. It seems probable that the constant taking of ar ticles in pledge, which of necessity demanded their safekeeping to secure the repayment of the loan, suggested the like deposit of money and valuapresent banking system was originally a pawnshop, instead of a bank which later took up the pawn business. time to make a change for the worse in the | dreadful the way these people owe." had begun. We tried to force a little of the wine between her lips, but she could not swallow, and now, instead of lying stili, kept tossing her head from side to side. Corte was undone. He could do nothing but stand at the head of the bed, in mute despair, as he watched the parting soul sob its way out. I went towards him. "Shall I send the intendant for a priest? If ever words changed the countenance of a man, mine did. His eyes fairly blazed with anger, and he hissed out: "No, signorethis is a priest's work-pray if you like, but no priest comes here.'

I had, as all other men have, frequently called upon God, sometimes in idle blasphemy, but never an an occasion so serious as this. Pray if ! iked! I had forgotten what real prayer sas. Impelled by a power I could not resist, I knelt down and tried to form some words to reach the Most High. But they would not come; I could only feel them, and I rose again and took my stand by the dying girl.

She began to taik now in a rambling manner, and with that strength which comes at the point of death from somewhere; her voice was clear, but with a metallic ring. It is not for me to repeat the last words of one who is now with her God, but I gathered from them a story of trusting love, of infamous wrong and dastardly crime. And Corte shook like a tranch in the wind, as the words came thick and fast from the lips of his dying child. After awhile she became still once again. 33 still that we thought she had passed away; but she revived on a sudden, and called out:

"Father-I cannot see-I am blind-stoop down and let me whisper.'

"I am here, little one-close-quite close "Tell him-I-forgive. You must forgive, too-promise.

Corte pressed his lips to her damp forehead, but spoke no word.

"It is bright again-they are calling memother! Hold me up-I cannot breathe.' Corte sank on his knees with his head between his hands, and passing my arm round the poor creature I lifted her up, and the spirit passed. In the room there was now a silence which was broken by a heart-rending sob from Corte. He staggered to his feet with despair on his face.

"She said forgive!" he exclaimed. "Man, you have seen an angel die. This is the work of a priest, of a pontiff, of him who calls himself Vicar of Christ! Go now, and leave me with my dead."

I took his hand, and pressing it, turned to the door. As I closed it behind me, I saw Corte bending over the still face of his child, and the little dog, throwing up his head, howled piteously.

to bid him begone there and then, and only controlled myself with an effort. I could see, however, that, in his way, he had formed a friendly feeling towards me, and, rememwith civility, and offering him a seat began the conversation.

"That was a strange finish to the Gonaloniere's speech," I said, in allusion to the death of the man at the hands of the mob. "He was a fool, and deserved to die."

"Do you know his name?" Ceci hesitated for a moment, and I saw he was lying when he said "No." "I gather," I added, "that you are of the Bigi, the party that favors the return of the

"That would be no new thing to you." "True," he said, stroking his white beard, "they die here like rats in their holes." "I suppose so; but as a matter of fact I did know there was a death, and a very sad one. I know Mathew Corte, but how have

"You will find some difficulty in persuading him to give it a Christian burial."

"How! Is he a heretic, or a pagan-if so!"

"I did not say that. I believe the man to "I will see him to-morrow," said Ceci. "I think he will yield to reason. Poor child!" He went out, and down the stairs with the step of a young man, and I marveled at the contradictory nature, which could show the kindness it had towards affliction, and at the same time coldly plan to remove a fellowcreature from the world, as one removes a bud from a tree, with a touch of the knife. But Ceci's words had also reminded me again of Corte's need. I stood at the door listenng until his footsteps died away, and knew he was gone for the night. Then I pulled out my purse, and looked at its contents; there were two gold crowns left, and a few pauls. I hesitated for a little, but the need of the man upstairs was greater than mine. Drawing off my boots so that there might be no sound, I stole up softly, like a thief, and gained the landing of Corte's room. The door was partly open, and I stood before it for a short while, half afraid to enter. Plucking up heart, I crept in gently. The dead girl lay with her hands crossed on her bosom, still as if cut out of marble, and on her face was fixed a sad little smile. Corte sat on a stool near the table; his head was buried between his hands, and he had given way to silent despair. The dog lay asleep in a corner. I meant to have proffered the gold I had with me, as a loan to Corte, but I did not dare to address him in his grief. So placing the coins quietly on the table in such a manner that when he raised his head he must see them, I withdrew as noiselessly as I came, and reached my room without attracting any attention. It was not until the small hours of the morning that I sought my couch, for my mind kept working on the thoughts which agitated me after witnessing the death of Corte's daughter. At the same time, I was able to see that this consideration of the suffering of others was of the greatest benefit to me. It took me out of myself. It showed me that my own were not the only sorrows in the world, and that there might yet be others who had reached a deep of misery as far below that of Corte consider my own position, and I began to think there was some mysterious power that was preventing me carrying out my plan of reprisal against D'Entrangues. I had come to Florence red-hot on his track. I have promised you secrecy, and therefore cannot do as I would, and that is, lay the matter before the Signory; but I tell you plainly that if I can I will upset your plan, and now you had better leave me."

I had by this thrown everything into the fire; but it was not possible to control myself longer. As for Ceci, he sat for a moment, his eyes staring out of his head with rage, and his white beard fairly bristling. He

"I do not wish to be hard on you, and ou know the punishment for debt. I will take the furniture back for two pieces, although it has deteriorated by wear and tear to the value of a florin, and you still owe me one piece. It is but a stroke of your sword we want, and here are ten gold crowns."

I tried every available means I could think of to obtain employment, to no avail, and, in the intervals of my fruitless search for work, haunted the streets and gardens, with the became so small that a blind beggar would have hardly thanked me for the gift of them. I lived in constant dread of Ceci reappearing to demand the sum I owed for my rent, but he did not come. He was evidently giving me time, starving me out to surrender to his terms. I used to see him as I went in and out, sitting in his office like a spider, yet he never even lifted his head as I passed. I hated, almost feared, going by that door. Bitterly did I regret not having left Florence when I was able. It was now impossible to do so, unless as a defaulter, and the weight of my paltry debt oppressed me, as if a cannon ball were slung around my had parted with my cloak for money to buy food, but the last copper of that was gone, and I was now penniless. The room was almost dark, and I sat staring at the jewels and at the diamonds on it, which sparkled through the gloom. That little trinket was linked with the one great event of my life. All the past came vividly before my excited brain. I was again in that des perate retreat of Charles of France up the valley of the Taro, with the army of the League in full cry behind us. The old boar Trevulzio commanded the rear guard, disputed every inch of the road, and now and again stood boldy at bay, and gave a taste of his tusks to the duke of Bari, and the fine gentlemen of Venice. It was at this moment that Roderigo Gonsaga made his dash for the height above the junction of the Ceno and the Taro. Trevulzio saw the movement; he was powerless to help, and knew that if it succeeded all was lost. All the time I was at his bridle hand.

"Ride for your life," he said, "and tell the king-that." He pointed to the black line of the infantry of Spain moving towards the eights. I was off at once, waiting no sec-

KISSED BY BISMARCK

An Interesting Account of the Way in Which the Fron Chancellor Honored a Veteran.

I had reached Hamburg after a most disagreeable trip across the Atlantic. Incessant storms at sea have a bad effect upon the ordinary mortal. When, during eight days, one has seen trunks and bags playing hide-and-seek with one another, and everything from a sponge to a coat jumping imaginary hurdles in a steamer stateroom, the blissful steadiness of a hotel on land, invites to repose. I was, therefore, not at all impressed by the over-zealous gold-laced portier of a large Hamburg hotel, who evidently thought that I had arrived that Saturday evening from America for the express purpose of visiting Bismarck next day.

"Mister must visit Friedrichsruh ze Sunday morning." I told him "Mister" was tired, and did not care whether the pope or the czar lived next door and "had" to be seen; what "Mister" wanted was sleep-good, honest, straightforward sleep, not the imitation slumber which was the nearest that could be found while afloat on a tossing ocean

The poor portier was surprised, nonplussed; but he had his revenge when, the next morning (Sunday), I rang my bell at seven o'clock, and inquired after the timetable to Friedrichsruh.

"Ah, it would be difficult-very diffi cult-for mister to see Bismarck. The Rhenish provinces would have the day and the reception."

As soon as I heard that it would be difficult, my mind was immediately made up; I would certainly go.

Nature has blessed many of us with that doubtful quality which in the vernacular we describe by "pig-headed. ness." What we cannot get we want, and what lies ready before us we disdain. An apple or a peach gained by the scaling of a lofty orchard wall will. we imagine, taste sweeter than the fruit to which a pleasant path has led. An old carriage with a hungry-looking horse took me to the station, and soon I was cooped up in one of the little railroad compartments, speeding toward the Mecca of Germany. Two distinguished-looking gentlemen sat near me. One, a white-haired giant, a veteran who had heard bullets whistle at Sedan, as I discovered later on, carried a war medal wrapped in a piece of newspaper in his pocket. In spite of his modesty, he afterward received a hearty hand shake from Bismarck. The other, a no less imposinglooking man, a treasure in his way, for he was one of the very few I have met on my travels who spoke enthusiastically of New York and-Chicago, was kissed by Bismarck! Both, on their return, were delighted; for the honor of hand shake or an embrace is reserved for comparatively few.-Frederick W Wendt, in St. Nicholas.

If one young chicken is devoured by a hawk a year, the whole race is condemned and no account taken of the 500 mice and young rats he may eat during that period. Mr. W. B. Hall, of Wakeman, O., was county clerk while the Ohio hawk law was in force, and he issued 46 bounty certificates for sparrow hawks. He examined their stomachs and found them all to contain the remains of grasshoppers, beetles and meadow mice; not one held any signs of chickens. The investigations of the department of agriculture are more conclusive yet, showing hundreds of mice against every chicken.

STORY WITH A LESSON.

How a Tramp's Politeness Was Awakened by the Sight of a Model Creamery.

I will relate an amusing incident I saw happen in a creamery I visited a short time ago, writes G. B. Lawson in Creamery Journal. The creamery was as clean and neat as any could be. There was not a speck of dirt on the floor or about any of the machinery. The door opened and a tramp came in with muddy boots on. It was rainy at the time. He made one step on the inside and stopped, as soon as he saw the condition of the room, looked at apologized for coming in in such a hurry with so much mud on his feet. If that creamery had been dirty and grimy, as some are, that tramp would not have stopped at the door and apolgotten the buttermilk he wanted without looking at his feet. Brother Buttermaker, do you keep your creamery to clean that a tramp will stop at the door, take off his hat and offer an apology for coming in? If not, try it and see what a difference it will have on the looks of the place, and also on the quality of the product made.

Germs in the Fore-Milk.

With regard to the number of germs present in the fore-milk, Prof. Harrison found that in the first few strains of milk removed from the teats they varied from 18,000 to 54,000 per cubic centimeter; while the numbers present to only from 890 to 4,800 per cubic zentimeter. These figures clearly demonstrate how important it is that the first few drops of milk from each teat should be milked into a separate receptacle and subsequently thrown sway, and should on no account be mixed with the bulk of the milk.

nearly $200,000 a year for road improvements, including the salary and expenses of the commissioner and deputies, it is not only fit but absolutely necessary that provision should be made for keeping the roads so improved in good condition. Experience shows that many towns will not do this. From carelessness or parsimony they allow what has been made a good road to deteriorate from the moment the original work was completed, and nothing deteriorates much more promptly than a neglected highway. If the state has paid half or two-thirds the cost of the improvements it has ampleground for requiring that the towns it has aided shall use proper diligence to retain and continue the benefits of the state's contribution. In this sense the clause in this year's bill which directs the commissioner to see that proper repairs are made from time to time is the most important feature in it. It is founded in both justice and

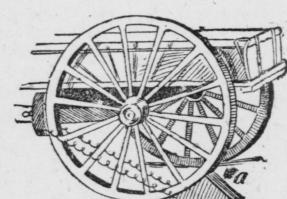

That the danger of neglect is no idla fancy is known to all who have locked into the results of road-building in Connecticut thus far, but it is opportune to quote a few lines from the Ansonia Sentinel on the subject because that excellent paper illustrates the position from the experience of its own bailiwick. It says: "This will compel the repairing of the reads which, owing to neglect and inefficiency, are fast becoming worthless, such as the road in Ansonia and Derby, laid two or more years ago."

Towns will have to remember that it is one thing to build roads because they can have half or two-thirds or threequarters of the cost paid by the state. and quite another thing to undertake the responsibility of creating and maintaining good roads. The Boiled Butter Business.

One of the worst and most insidious enemies of good cream butter is process or "boiled" butter. When butter becomes so bad and rancid as to be absolutely worthless for any purpose, it is melted to its original oil, treated with alkaloids, freed from volatile oil, re-crystalized, and then churned with in the remainder of the milk amounted sour milk to freshen it. This produces a thoroughly renovated and it is claimed wholesome butter with a good body which will easily show a butter fut content of 80 per cent. NO USE FOR LOAFERS.

Assistant Secretary Vanderlip Determined to Stop Killing of Time in Treasury Department.

Assistant Secretary Vanderlip is determined to put a stop to loafing on the part of the clerks in the treasury come notorious. Shortly after nine o'clock in the morning he visited the office of the third auditor and found the chiefs and a number of clerks engaged in conversation and reading the morning papers. TO CHANGE CHURCHES.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Is Expected to Join Roman Catholic Church Soon.

It is rumored that William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will shortly be receaved into the Roman Catholic church. Young Vanderbilt wed a daughter of the church, Miss Virginia Fair.

Mr. Vanderbilt has already given up his pew in Trinity church, Newport's fashionable Episcopalian sanctuary. He gave this sitting to his mother's present husband, Oliver H. P. Belmont, and this was taken as the first step in his withdrawal from the church of his childhood. He is a regular attendant at mass now, going each Sunday morning to the Catholic services and kneeling beside his wife, and his family and friends are now fully prepared for the formal announcement of his admission to the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt are shortly to go to California and it is expected that the announcement of Mr. Vanderbilt's admission to the Roman Catholic church will be made on their departure.

The correspondent at Rhinebeck of the Poughkeepsie News Press sends his paper an interview with John Jacob Astor at the latter's country home near hat village, in which he quotes Mr. Asser as disapproving of the action of his brother, William Waldorf Astor, in Co. only. In order to get its beneficial becoming a subject of Queen Victoria. "My grandmother was a sister of Col. Henry B. Armstrong and a daughter of Gen. Armstrong," Col. Astor is quoted as saying. "They were both true Americans and the Armstrong blood is strong in me." When asked if it was true that he contemplated going to the Philippines, Mr. Astor said that if the war department expressed a desire for him to go there he would certainly respond. He takes a deep interest in the progress of events in the Philippines, and says he is willing to answer any call that his country may make upon him.

It was an odor of roses about my nephew that led to the discovery of the glove. Up to his nineteenth birthday, which arrived a month ago, he had gone will never be rid of the disease; on the through life contemptuous of buttonholes, and I was a little taken aback about that steadily worse. S. S. is the only cure time when I ran against him at a corner with a Marechal Niel at his breast. He whipped it hurriedly into his pocket, and, ed not to notice.

But my faith in him was profoundly shaken. Soon I learned that he was conveying tasteful little buttonholes into the house up his coat sleeve, and he blushed when he was asked about a tumbler in while. I took almost when he was asked about a tumbler in every so-called blood his bedroom. Then his mother found a six button glove, size 51/2, in his pocket, which none of us could identify.

himself, which he carried spread out in that I would never be cured. At the advice of a friend I then took S. S. S., and began to improve. I continued the prove. I continued the prove are plately build.

Pending investigations, the glove was replaced in Albert's pocket in the nice little piece of tissue paper which protected it. Then we watched Albert. Hitherto he had a habit of leaving the room It is like self-destruction to continue when the conversation took a feminine to take potash and mercury; besides turn. But now a change came over him. totally destroying the digestion, they He sat on when his mother talked with dry up the marrow in the bones, pro- his aunt over the relative merits of styles ducing a stiffness and swelling of the of gowns, and, though he pretended to be joints, causing the hair to fall out, and reading his book, he was really drinking in the conversation.

On one occasion he came out of his shell in a remarkable manner. The two ladies were asking each other what was the other name for the waterfall back, is guaranteed Purely Vegetable, and is and Albert, carried away by his interest the only blood remedy free from these in the discussion, murmured, "Redin-

His mother and his aunt looked at him in amazement, which made Albert turn both white and red. Not long afterward it leaked out that he knew what "sailor collars" were and liked pale pink ones. Albert even began to take an interest in his sisters' dresses. Once he was discovered trying to ascertain for himself how much Gertrude, who trude liked them at first, but it was soon borne in upon her, though she was only 14, that her brother was experimenting on her for private reasons of his own. Albert was also curious to know what size in boots Gertrude required and smiled to himself when told. Gertrude, who Of No. 503 W. Ninth Sareou, cincinnati, has known since she was 4 that she has large feet, did not like this.

It must, I think, have been a week after the discovery of the glove in Albert's pocket that he asked his mother, with an artificial yawn, whether 51/2 was not a small size in gloves for a lady. Then his mother asked me to go delicately to work and find out what was Albert's condition and who she was.

I thought I would leave it to Albert to tell me who she was, but I experimented on him to discover his condition. Noth-OUR FALL CATALOGUE gives descriptions of ing, I feel, could have been more delicate these and other Seed Grain, also Clovers and than the way I set about it. He carried the glove in an inside preket, over the spot where Albert thought his heart was. Taking advantage of a favorable moment, WOOD & STUBBS, SEEDSMEN. I got at the coat and changed the glove to another pocket.

The next time I had an opportunity for it, it was back in the old place again. This happened several times, Albert, who is a simple youth for all his cunning, evidently thinking that he had put the glove into the wrong pocket himself. Then I hazarded a bolder step. Again taking possession of the glove, I dropped it in a corner of the drawing room.

That evening Albert came back from the office in a perturbed state of mind. I watched him on his knees in the Lall looking for something, and when he saw me he pretended to be unlacing his shoes. He wandered from room to room and was subsequently heard flinging his things about in his bedroom. He said not a word about his loss, however, to any one. Next morning I was surprised to see him bright and cheerful. I went into the drawing room, and behold! the glove was gone. From the way the unsuspecting Albert was incessantly putting his hand into that inside pocket I saw that there was once a 51/2 glove in it. I had feared that Albert would treasure it somewhere else now; but no, he evidently thought that he had dropped it in the drawing room accidentally-perhaps after passionately gazing on it in secret.

But the awakening came when I concealed the little giove in a vase on the smoking room mantelpiece. Albert ran it to earth in a day and a half without saying a word on the subject to anybody, unless possibly the housemaid. When next I felt for it in his pocket, it was not there. From that time Albert and I were playing at hide and seek. When I was not looking for the glove, he was. I found it inside the case of his cricket bat and dropped it behind the piano. Albert searched it out, and soon afterward I got it under a corner of the carpet in his bedroom. Then I hid it among some music, knowing that Albert would look there last. All this time I did not know if he suspected who it was that was playing with him. I do not know now, for we have never opened our minds on the subject.

Albert did not find the glove among the music. When two days had passed, I put it in an easier place, for Albert was bearing his disappointment bravely, Still he did not find it. Next I flung it on the floor of his bedroom, and Albert did not seem to see it. I laid it on his mantelpiece, and he let it remain there. At last it struck me to look in Albert's pocket again. There was another glove in itsize 61/4, eight buttons.

Then I went to Albert's mother and told her he was cured .- New York News.

Why is Latin taught in the schools? Because some foolish person taught it Plany years ago, and other foolish persons have been following in his footsteps. Why don't teachers adopt new plans when they discover that old ones are not satisfactory? You will find progress everywhere except in the schools. There is no more excuse for teaching Latin than there is for teaching fortune telling. Teachers have an excuse for teaching Latin, which they learned from other teachers, but there is nothing in it. Latin in the schools is a useless relic that should have been disposed of years ago. At least half the stuff taught in the schools is useless and takes up time that should be devoted to practical
